Feminist Icon Design Workshop

Meghan Kelly | @meghankellymaps

The (often) visual expression of spatial information that intentional and explicitly addresses questions of power, inequality, representation, and ethics.

A map may be feminist in content, form, and/or process.

THE BLACK SNAKE IN SIOUX COUNTRY

showing the Dakota Access Pipeline reroute through former Sioux lands ...and its consequences

- The map shows the proposed route of the Dakota Access Pipeline (blue line) crossing through North Dakota. It highlights several key areas and boundaries. A legend on the left identifies symbols: a black arrow for the Dakota access pipeline route, a grey arrow for the original pipeline route, a grey box for 1851 Fort Laramie Treaty Sioux lands, a grey shaded area for the Standing Rock Indian Reservation, a yellow box for Majority-White community, a yellow line for County boundary, a grey line for Major road, and a wavy blue line for Mni (water). The map also includes labels for Bismarck, Mandan, and Devils Lake.

Goal: Use feminist data visualization principles to design alternative icons!

Designing Feminist Icons

Step 1: Pick an icon. In writing, reflect about its meaning. How might you critique its design through a feminist lens?

Step 2: Select a note taker in your group. In your groups, share your icons as well as your critiques. Discuss, reflect, and collate or combine your notes.

Step 3: Review and if needed, complete your reflections and collated notes from Tuesday.

Step 4: Drawing on feminist data visualization principles (above), iteratively redesign the Maki icons. Keep your sketches and drafts. Annotate your sketches!

Step 5: Discuss your designs within your group and prepare to share your process and designs with the broader group!
